WE ARE THE PEOPLE

*The people is Everyone, everybody.
Everybody is you and me and all others.
What everybody says is what we all say.
And what is it we all say?*

CARL KREIDER, Ph.D.
Acting President
Professor of Economics

What is the function of the Christian Liberal Arts College in the world of today? In a day of increasing fragmentation of human knowledge, when many scholars consider it a mark of erudition to know more and more about less and less, the Christian College cultivates a breadth of human understanding. In a day when the crises of civilization compel us to choose between a worse evil and a greater good than mankind has ever known before, the Christian College teaches that we must be visionary and utopian if we are not to be unprecedently base; in order to be truly realistic we must be loftily idealistic. In a day when the multitudes either throng Christ or demand His crucifixion, the Christian College student learns to touch Him significantly and recognizes that the essence of discipleship is a complete willingness either to die or to live for Him.

—Carl Kreider

Goshen College is permeated with the universality and centrality of Christ. Christ in God is designer and creator of the universe, and gives meaning to all human knowledge. Christ is personal Saviour and Lord, to be freely accepted and wholeheartedly followed by all men. Christ and Christianity hold the solutions to all the ills of society. Goshen College seeks to make Christ central in the life and thought of each student and to send him out to make Christ universally effective in men and in society.

—Paul Bender

We know now, in the light of recent and current history, to what depths men can go, without God; the end of this road is destruction. But we have always known what men can do, with God. This is our goal, and this our only hope, that we may bring men to God.

—Harold S. Bender

Through four years we have watched you, weighed your words, and scrutinized your philosophy. We have parodied you, caricatured you, disagreed with your length of assignments, and even dared, at times, to criticize your tests. But we honor you and are loathe to leave the sense of security you have afforded us.

To many of us you have become our ideal of manhood and womanhood. You have helped us face our difficulties with an all-conquering faith. You have shown us the "more excellent way" of life.

We have appreciated your respect, your courtesy, your friendliness on the campus, your confidence in spite of our failures, your discipline in our weaknesses, and your deep fellowship in which we have always felt an upward tug.

We have found you genuinely Christian. And if you have found us other than we have found you, please charge our faults to our immaturity and not to our wills.

As the years roll on and off our horizon we shall find life richer and fuller because YOU have been our faculty.

I am a Senior, capital "S". You'll need to allow a trace of pardonable pride. — Eight reams of paper, a bushel of pencils, one gallon of ink, 25,000 pages, and ninety-nine tests ago I was a freshman, small "f". Along the way many changes in personnel have occurred in the group which started out to be the Class of '51. An odd hundred of us will step up to receive our "sheepskins."

The Senior Retreat, most remarkable of the events of the year, took the class to the wooded wilderness of Brown County. En route, we spent an evening at I.U., listening to Lillienthal. It was here that Libby Glick found fame as "Operation Find" attempted to locate her at leaving time next morning.

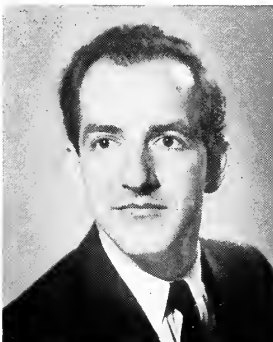

With a flurry of seminars and final exams, the end of our college careers rushed to meet us. The feeling grew that in spite of everything, the years ahead would have to be pretty good to beat those just behind. This was supposed to be the end, the peak, and here they are calling it commencement. It's been good to get ready to begin together.

THE BIBLICAL SEMINARY

Recognizing the great need for the Gospel of Christ in the world, the Goshen College Biblical Seminary is seeking to produce consecrated workers who will faithfully interpret its message and carry it abroad.

The instructors endeavor to accomplish this by offering courses in Bible, Church History, Systematic Theology, and Practical Theology, and by providing practical work experiences and other activities related to the students' educational and spiritual growth in an atmosphere of love and respect for the Mennonite heritage of faith. The recovery of the life, faith, and spiritual power of the early church in the Anabaptist movement has been an inspiration to the faculty for many years. The past decade work of research in this difficult field is gradually beginning to yield fruits in evangelistic vision and increased spiritual vigor.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The anticipated Goshen College School of Nursing became reality this year with a new program including several periods of affiliation, classes on the college campus, and clinical work at the Elkhart General Hospital. Following four years of study and experience on the floor, the prospective R.N. will have earned a Bachelor of Science degree and the right to take the State Board Examinations.

Miss Orpah Mosemann, acting director; Miss Esther Widmer, director of nursing services; and Miss Mildred Shoemaker, nursing arts instructor, compose the faculty at the present time. Miss Verna Zimmerman and Miss Mabel Brunk, as director of the school and instructor in nursing respectively, will join the staff soon.

Arrangements have been made for a three-month affiliation in pediatrics at the Cook County School of Nursing in Chicago and negotiations are in progress for a similar program in psychiatry with Logansport State Hospital, Logansport, Indiana, in tuberculosis nursing with the Healthwin Hospital, South Bend, Indiana, and in Public Health Nursing with the Public Health unit of Elkhart General Hospital.

The new nursing arts laboratory in the Science Hall is the scene of much of the nurses' work on the campus. Well equipped with two bedside units, a nurse's station, medicine cabinets, linen closets, utility room, and the dummy patient, Mrs. Turner, the lab duplicates the main centers of activity in a hospital. Here the students become familiar with the equipment and learn the procedures that are a necessary part of every nurse's training. This summer two more bedside units will be added to meet the growing needs of the school.

The Goshen College School of Nursing is approved by the Indiana State Board of Nursing. A school cannot be fully accredited until a class has graduated, but all arrangements are being made according to the qualifications for an accredited school. Enrollment is open to boys as well as girls. The field of nursing is large—the opportunities for service are unlimited, and a Christian school of nursing presents a challenge to every student.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Attendance reached a new peak with the enrollment of 236 students for the largest summer school session in Goshen's history. Men outnumbered by women 2 to 1 . . . "men's side" invaded by women during chapel . . . teachers, pre-meds, pre-nurses, Th.B.'s . . . 103 married students.

A wide range of faiths intermingled: Mennonite, Assembly of God, Episcopal, Pentecostal, Roman Catholic, Apostolic Christian, Lutheran, Seventh Day Adventist, Presbyterian.

Order of the day followed the summer school pattern: same classes every morning . . . afternoons free (for study) . . . croquet, tennis, softball, volleyball.

Student activities continued under capable direction. "Y" was headed by Walter Drudge, Miriam Moyer, Josephine Lehman, Paul Diener. Kathryn Leinbach and Robert Hershberger edited the summer issue of the Record.

The traditional banquet carried a "Summertime" theme, and Lake Webster again beckoned for the annual outing where swimming, boating, volleyball, wiener roast, hour cruise on the "Dixie" relaxed the scholars.

By August 5, thirty-one students completed requirements for degrees: twenty B.S. in Education, nine B.A., and two A.A.

WINTER BIBLE SCHOOL

Fifty-first annual Winter Bible School—twenty-six students attended. Of these, three received diplomas for having completed three years' work: Lucille Schmucker, Simon Good, Reuben Liechty.

Administration—S. J. Hostetler, superintendent; Nelson Kauffman, Glen Martin,

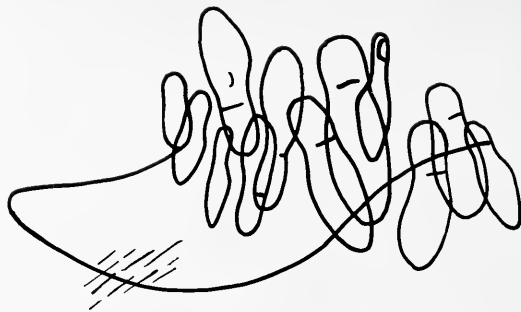

Amsa Kauffman, J. C. Wenger. John Gingerich, John Umble, Paul M. Yoder. Evening classes were offered to those who couldn't attend full time; Dr. Massanari assisted here.

Extra-curricular — High-scoring basketball team won four out of six games. A get-acquainted tea sponsored by "Y" Cabinet was held in Kulp Hall. Budapest String Quartet and St. Olaf Choir gave concerts. Brunk's Cabin played host to WBS Social; "bull sessions" for the fellows in the cabins on Highway 33, dorm parties for the girls; Snack Shop invasion at 9:30 p.m. became habitual.

Spiritual growth—The annual Christian Life Conference was held; students took advantage of the Bible Lecture week-end. A chance to give back some of that received came with participation in six WBS programs at surrounding churches.

The "Y" is five hundred students and faculty members in a concerted effort to "Know Christ and Make Him Known." While urging acceptance of personal responsibility upon each individual member, the "Y" is also the faithful servant where administrative teams are needed to do the job. She is alert to need and quick to meet it. The speaker, the singer, the poster-maker, the planner, the personal worker, the typist and the clean-up man all contribute alike to the total program.

The church and the school must cooperate if they are to be of value to each other. This cooperation encompasses many areas of thought and activity. Through posters, talks on nonconformity, and Gospel teams, the Church and School Relations Committee has attempted to stimulate constructive thought and activity for better cooperation between church and school.

EXTENSION COMMITTEE

CO-CHAIRMEN: John E. Oyer

Mary Jane Lederach

The "Y" Extension week begins at 6:45 on Sunday morning. Forty students fill waiting cars in front of the Ad building and depart to begin mass distribution of the "Way". From home to home on each sleepy street they trudge. At nine o'clock two busses and several cars leave for the mission Sunday Schools — Locust Grove, Sunnyside, Wawasee, and Plymouth Street. A visitation team goes to South Bend to lay the ground work for organized work there.

At one-thirty student visitation groups go to a hospital, convalescent homes, private homes, and the city jail. Through the week crafts and recreational clubs are a part of the regular programs of all the missions. One separate program provides a recreational and crafts evening with the children of a federal housing community, preparatory to beginning more direct mission work there. Through these channels of service and others arranged by the Extension Committee hundreds of students strive "To Make Christ Known."

CHRISTOPHER DOCK CLUB

With humble dedication to teaching as a call to service, a love for the individual child and his interests, making learning a living, meaningful experience, two hundred years ago Christopher Dock, a pious schoolmaster of the Skippack, established and practiced the concept of teaching which Goshen College accepts today. More than two hundred students of the last two years' graduates now teach in the United States and foreign countries. This year over one-third of the students are in teacher education.

The Christopher Dock Club carried Dock's challenge for Christian teachers as a theme for an American Education Week chapel program and for an education conference of students and alumni at Homecoming. Teaching in rural schools and the value of voluntary service units were program subjects for the elementary section this year while the secondary section turned their attention toward juvenile delinquency and teacher-pupil relations. In a conjoint meeting the two sections heard Paul Vergheze and Wha Sook Suh, two foreign students, discuss Ethiopian and Korean educational systems. In March, Dr. Glen Miller of the faculty spoke to both secondary and elementary education sections on alcohol education in the public schools.

Students responded enthusiastically to the Club's first affiliation with Future Teachers of America this year. This move was another step toward the professional growth and understanding essential to effective Christian teaching. In a mid-century world this task requires an active, personal commitment to Christ and His purpose.

—Margaret Kauffman

FOREIGN MISSIONS FELLOWSHIP

Our hearts' desire during the past year has been to intercede through prayer for the brethren who today uphold the banner of the cross in foreign lands.

"The Scriptural Motives of Missions" was presented at our first meeting. At our annual F.M.F. Conference, J. D. Graber typified the strategy and present resources of our unfulfilled world-wide mission. With J. R. Graham we envisioned the spiritual wants of Formosa. For growth in homemaking—its aspects of beauty and practicality—the Home Economics Club lives and does its part on the campus. Not only are the meetings a place to learn about foreign foods, Christmas customs in other countries, and floral arrangement; the Club also helps to acquaint its prospective teachers and the non-majors as well with this field. As an added attraction, at each meeting refreshments are served in new and attractive ways.

"Pull-er-up! Pull-er-up! What you need is more altitude!" During the brief history of the Aero Club, it has become increasingly apparent that the ways of the air are not only the ways of the future, but the ways of the present. But despite limited money, the cooperative efforts of the Aero Club give each at least one opportunity a year to get their feet off the ground and to look down on the world.

GERMAN CLUB

One evening I almost forgot that I was in America. What was going on? I had dropped in on a group of students, and heard them sing "Ich weiss nicht, was soll es bedeuten . . ." There are few things that bring one so close to the German life as these old folk songs.

Sometimes one can catch some German phrases, and, hearing the favorite expression: "Vass ist louss?" he is reminded of the well-known quotation: "Deutsche Sprak ist schwere Sprak."

The contemporary arts, the music, the ballad-poetry, and the scenery of Germany were presented in the various meetings of the Club. At one meeting the German exchange students gave talks on their hometowns, and illustrated German Christmas customs by lighting the four candles of the traditional Advent's wreath.

SPANISH CLUB

Zealous Spanish clubbers meet once monthly to indulge in Spanish fun and vocalization. The evening usually begins with music—anything from La Cucaracha to the lovely antiphonal effect of Las Posadas. A candle light portrayal of the Nativity scene, breaking the pinata and sub-zero caroling highlighted the holiday season.

An evening of informal games provided a successful riot. Dignified seniors and senoritas twisted themselves into unrecognizable knots to formulate Spanish words from the letters they held.

El señor Delgado, "del Peru," and campus Spaniards, in two programs, presented a fast-moving portrayal of Spanish culture. The culminating event was the Mexican fair. Tortillas were made and sold while diverse games and rhythms enticed participants to "try the Mexican manner of fun."

A CAPPELLA CHORUS

DIRECTOR: Dwight Weldy

COLLEGIATE CHORUS

DIRECTOR: Walter E. Yoder

The COLLEGIATE CHORUS, commonly thought of as the "Freshman Chorus," is directed by Professor Walter E. Yoder. This group doesn't tour, but prepares the singers for more advanced choral work.

Sunday afternoon vespers . . . Christian Life Conference . . . Freshman Parents Day—in such services as these the chorus contributes to the worship through song. The collegiate singers helped in the traditional presentation of the Messiah at Christmas, and in the choral evening during Homecoming.

These experiences all helped to make our year of working and worshipping together one of mutual enjoyment and growth.

—Mary Ellen Yoder

Their repertoire ranging from madrigals, such as "My Bonnie Lass She Smileth," to the modern sacred numbers of Benjamin Britten, The Motet Singers become acquainted with a wide variety of choral literature. Special preference is given to small, sensitive works not practical for a large group. During the year the Singers par-

A CAPPELLA CHORUS is a combination of hard work, challenging difficulties, and rewarding satisfaction. Getting up at daybreak to sing at the Eighth Street Menonite Church on Thanksgiving morning was invigorating. The spring tour took us through Michigan, Canada, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. During the year we enjoyed the simple beauty of hymns and spirituals and the majesty of great choral works. These we shared with others through frequent performances at the college and neighboring communities.

MUSIC CLUB

Enthusiastic campus "artists" find varied expression in Music Club activities. The year began with the annual madrigal sing at the cabin. The group, gathered around tables, captured the sixteenth century atmosphere of informal singing. We valued Prof. Yoder's discussion on the selection of good hymns. Early this spring Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" set sail with Music Club members acting as hosts. A wide variety of music was presented by Evangeline Collins Mausy, guest artist of the year. Instrumentalists were favored with a woodwind clinic conducted in the spring. Appreciative listeners received abundant rewards from the year's efforts.

In summary, we believe that this intellectual combat of words, wits, and wisdom is pertinent, progressive, and profitable.

Just when Literary Societies were considered as "in passing," the Avons and Auroras came through in the clutch and once more are a challenging organization on the campus. The year was chuck-full of activity—not just blowing off steam, but educational, wholesome entertainment and recreation.

The gate was rebuilt; Elvin the magician held us in suspense; we braved the cold to cheer for Purdue and Northwestern; we were helped to understand Jews through a lecture by a liberal Rabbi; we cheered our teams to convincing victories and tried our hand at acting in a Shakespearian production and in the Spring program. A dead organization? No life or spirit? We offer you our past record.

THE RECORD

With the editor's well-worn, "Pax tecum," the staff meeting is well into another session. A few major recurring problems reassure all that this is the Record Office and the time is 4:15 Wednesday.

"I've just unearthed an uproarious cartoon from Sky and Telescope which my father and I enjoy immensely. How about putting it in 15 pica on 2nd?"

The editor's suggestion is quickly attacked with a volley of opinions.

"I'm opposed. In the first place . . ."

"No cartoons on 2nd with the sober stuff in 'Students Speak' this time. Anyway, the whole paper could use more dignity."

"To be sure, but . . ."

"The Eighth St. boys will write another letter if we don't have enough for 3rd."

"If you don't mind, I think I'll go home. Good night."

"I haven't sold any more ads this week. Can I go too?"

Another session is gone; another problem is solved, and, comes Friday night, a hundred co-eds devour the completed flashback of the campus "latest."

ATHLETICS

Every institution of learning faces the problem of what emphasis to give to athletics. The problem arises in pin-pointing their values.

At Goshen, the athletic department provides organized activities aimed at enrolling the participation of all students. Besides a continuous series of minor sports, there is softball in the fall followed by football on the gridiron. In the winter basketball and volleyball are played on the CUB courts and in the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball.

These activities are better for a body than Hadacol and develop a mind quicker than you can say "John Dewey." They engender teamwork and cooperation and qualities essential to the development of an educated personality.

"Plato, Galileo, Hershberger and Hindemith produce an educated being; baseball, football, basketball and track produce an educated human being."—A young Goshen Proverb.

Minor Sports . . .

With the erection of the new auditorium-gymnasium the lesser-wheel sports enjoyed a boom year. Increased space to play off the numerous tournaments and a speeded up tourney meant that more entries were possible.

Of course, not all the events are of the indoor variety; some depend only upon the weather for their success. Such are ice skating and other winter sports. Several periods of below-zero weather attracted dozens to the dam for hockey games or just practicing the elementary principles of a graceful circle or a figure-eight.

The newly marked court on the waxed floor gave those interested in shuffleboard a splendid place to manifest their abilities. Darrel Hostetler won the shuffleboard tournament this year, playing Don Driver in the finals.

Next to the shuffleboard courts, at one of the busiest spots in the building are the

which are not so minor

ping-pong tables. During nearly every free hour of the day the tables are in use.

The tumbling team was up to its usual tricks again with everything from pyramid building to merely rolling over safely.

The bow and arrow, too, offered much enjoyment even if it was just chasing after "wanderers" that missed the target completely.

Volleyball again gives nearly everyone who is interested a chance not only to yell and cheer but to actually develop their muscles along with their lungs.

The clang of horseshoes indicated another sport of the minor variety as the stake became the center of attention.

The stage became a badminton court as a singles tournament was fought out.

Minor sports which will be the recreation of many after they leave college rightly shares the spotlight of not-so-minor-sports.

Outcast

I stood alone upon a barren hill
And cried against the wind with all my will;
But my rebellion and tumultuous noise
Could neither alter nor annul its voice.
My shouting fell like rain upon a rock.
Without a key, I vainly beat the lock.
So when the airy tides obeyed me not,
With sullen under-thoughts I left the spot.
Far down the valley in a barren wood,
Alone amid the leafless trees I stood Forlornly listening; all the world was still Except for winds that swept a distant hill.

—Lenore Yoder

Monsoon Mist

*Along the hill side rolls a veil of mist
A damp, gray veil, obscuring all within
Its folds. No leaf or blade is left unkissed
By its cool lips. The mist, now thick, now thin,*

Moves on, a restless ribbon streaming through

*The trees. A million tiny drops alight
On leaf and blade. This bit of world is new And young. And as the mist resumes its flight,*

The droplets fall with heavy, dripping sound.

*Now unadorned, each tree is just a tree
With ordinary leaves no longer crowned With myriad glistening gems. The mist is free,*

Like time, which halts a moment, then despite

Our cry, continues its relentless flight.

Wilson Avenue

Wilson Avenue is a street, my street.
Every morning on the way to school I detour around Main Street to this quiet, little world untouched by sounds or words or even people. Independent, proud, unmindful of the encroaching town, this world says things to me which I hear nowhere else.

Constantly changing, Wilson Avenue has a different face and mood each time I walk down the long aisle of black top lined with belligerent maples who peer out at me, an intruder, from their bark-crustured fortresses.
Bushes reach out hesitantly to touch me, rustlings in the grass say that bright eyes are following me. Only in the evening when grayness hides me can I watch Wilson Avenue live. Then the few houses crouching beneath the trees bravely light their eyes and look out in the pregnant darkness, while I become a part of my street.

WORK DAYS

"Work for Unity, School and Community."

For the new girls' dormitory and a new Goshen Hospital students set for themselves the goal of $6,000. With diligent preparation behind them, the Service Committee spearheaded the drive. Theirs was the tedious matching of indicated abilities and interests to job requirements. This clearing house made calls and answered the ever-ringing phone.

"I can use twenty-five industrious men." "We're sorry. Could you use girls?" Disturbing calls—"Where's the young man you promised to take down my screens?" "Isn't that girl coming today?"

Students had their questions "How do I get there?" "Do you have your lunch?" "Are you in the right truck?" "Who's missing?"

There was discouragement — R a i n ; Friday's plans were revised. Saturday evening brought a review of activities: sign painting, picking apples, vaccinating chickens, house cleaning, lawn work, odd jobs, painting, picking up potatoes, farm labor, secretarial service. All service with a smile and calloused hands. Evaluations revealed Christian motives, tired muscles—a job well done.

Service Committee remains on the job with follow-up activities — collecting proceeds and receiving many letters of thanks.

Work for unity, school, and community was a success.

OPEN HOUSE

The Quad and North Hall were fastidiously swept and garnished. It was the only time of year when the men of the campus could boast of housemaid's knee and made beds. The fruit cake was extraordinarily delectable while the coffee and tea were not one whit less appetizing. The two stage productions which followed captivated the subtle humor of Shakespeare and the average college lad's frustration in the usual day's activities.

Kulp and Coffman shone while furniture polish and floor wax scented the air. Spotless and speckless, the rooms indicated the individuality of their owners. At the program the lucky boys through the "Private Eye" were shown the secret, unpurged, unpublished memoirs of a nameless college girl. The "Little Women" again face life, having emerged unscarred.

Although Open House programs may contain totally unrehearsed activities they always prove to be such a success that similar activities are planned for the next year.

The Universal Commonplace

SLEEP

... sure, rest the weary cogitator. Some new theory about the subconscious mind going on learning while you're asleep. Worth a try. Just forty winks anyway ... well, whaddayahnow? ... But I still had one cut coming ... hit the sack early to-night if it kills me.

PLAY

Well, bless their peaked little heads, look at 'em blow. Happy as if they all had good sense. Haven't had so much stupid fun since Hector was a pup ... good deal to let the hair way down and relax ... go nuts without doing it once in a while.

STUDY

... student, study, studious ... somewhere hidden among the derivations is the Reason we're here ... Millions of outside reading and thousands of term papers ... concentrate; get the formula and the principle, the event in history and the significant sweep ... fabricate a cogent whole.

EAT

Party's over ... tired, late ... (but it's an ill wind that blows no one any good; e.g., just check the left-overs) ... phooey on avoidupois, gonna lick the platters clean ... sneaking suspicion this is the funniest part of the whole party ... sleep, study, play, eat. ... Some cycle that.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

years with the alumni association

Alumni—the greatest asset of any institution. Alumni—the mass of eager, hesitant, aspiring, weak-kneed, laughing children of the soil who subjected their minds and bodies to the discipline of the campus. Each mind was stretched and broadened; each youth became a serious, useful man or woman—a member of a great body of workers. A few failed, leaving a task undone.

To do this, a beginning—an awakening was needed. "But how," said the people, "can we spare you? The soil—the kitchen need you. You must work." "But," rallied a few with a vision, "How best can we serve? Missions . . . Old People's Homes . . . Orphanages . . . Conference . . . YPBM . . . Hymnal . . . Nursing School . . . Christian School—these are needed. We must learn and apply—absorb and give. God is leading."

Opposition was followed by careful, prayerful thought. Then came N. E. Byer's first inaugural address on October 15, 1903.

"Aim: train men and women for true living.

"Relation to other schools: College is an institution of the church that includes secular interests and activities in connection with direct religious work for the purpose of making the latter more efficient.

"Governing policy it hopes to adopt: intellectual, aesthetic, constructive, ethical, religious.

"The full life: desire for knowledge and ability to think, the appreciation of the beautiful and capacity for creating art, the interests in things made and the skill to construct, the love of humanity and the capacity for usefulness, the worship of God and the power to serve Him."

On to Goshen!

Goshen College will open on Tuesday, September 29, 1903.

Directions to New Students

" . . . All new students should inform the business manager of the exact time they expect to arrive. They will then be met at the train by members of a student committee who will give

First-class taxi service — depot to dorm them all the necessary aid in delivering the baggage.

"If they fail to meet the committee, they will go to the Court House square, take a South Main Street city street car, which will then take them to the College grounds. They will go directly to the President's office temporarily located on the first floor of the Ladies' Dormitory where they can get all needed information (Record, 1903)."

Maids and lads became collegians as the campus lighted up and the departments took shape. The city limits of Goshen were even extended to include the College campus, indicating the impact of the embryo civilization. Men and materials were of the best. Look at these quotes from the early Records:

"The foundations of Goshen College are made entirely of cement. This is the first cement foundation ever put under a large building in the city of Goshen." (News Democrat).

"The new Dining Hall will be lighted with electric lights . . ."

"The grading of the campus is about completed as is also the new basin for the fountain and the sidewalks. 'Keep off the grass signs' will no doubt be necessary soon." (1904).

All-purpose front campus
"The Masqued Ball"

"When the first delegation of students arrived on Monday evening, September 28th, they found the President, Secretary, and Business Manager carrying boards out of the dining room and cleaning up the blocks and shavings left by the carpenters. The pioneer work done by both teachers and students is commendable."

Goshen College boasted of seventy-seven pioneer students in the prepared two-year college course or in the elocution, music, Bible, and commerce departments (1903). Serious, yes, but a sporting group. The front campus provided a "right-off-the-bat" ball diamond and the literary societies ignited ingenious frolics. Bob-sledding was the rage; outings, hiking, oyster-suppers, teas, boating also filled the social need. Besides a regular meeting once a week, consisting of lectures, debates, readings, original works, etc., a public literary program was given every Friday night. Pilgrims, parties, playlets, stiff-collared League of Nations "diplomats," Halloween masked "Mikes," mock trials or debates, tuneful 'tettes made up these weekly specials. The literary also organized the Lecture-Music Association which contributed to the campus culture.

Outside projects and gifts to the College they undertook with zest; the Student Library Association, 1903, began building the book stock, while Aurora arch, Adelphian aquarium, bleachers, furnishings for their meeting halls and for Assembly Hall reflected the contagious enthusiasm for their new "Mater."

The new Philharmonic Chorus and Sunshine Male Chorus cornered the musicians and the Saturday evening Bible Class and Mission Study Classes stimulated spiritual concern. The YPCA had initiated its program.

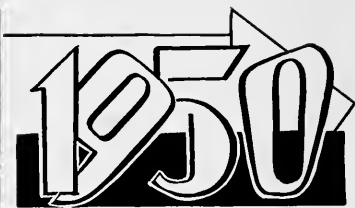

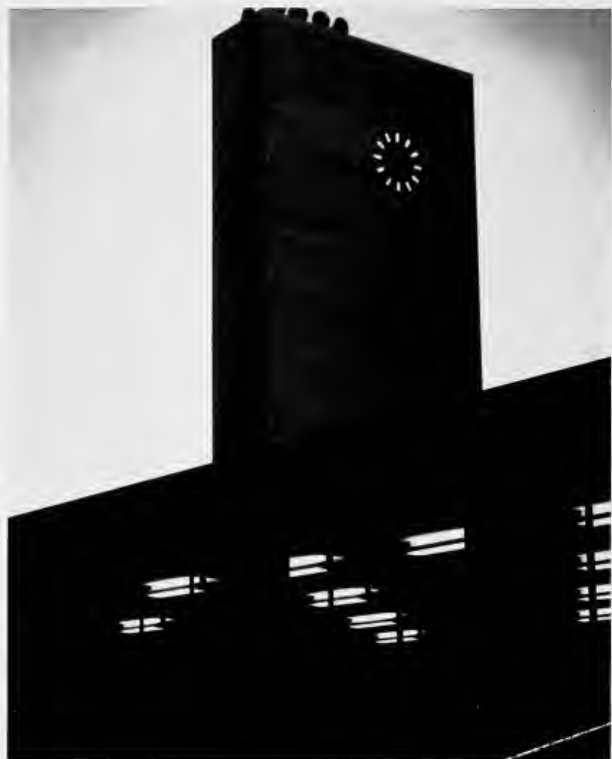

By 1906 the days of the separation of the East from West had set in as the men took over East Hall at the completion of Kulp Hall, the girls' abode. By this time the original seventy-seven of 1903 had expanded to three hundred eighty students and eleven faculty members.

The first decade had now passed, and with it the O. M. Curtis "Malleable Steel Ranges—Good Enough to Cook College Dinners On" and the Goshen Milling Company's "Better Brain Food made from Blended Patent Flour." The debaters now wagged tongues with Manchester or Mount Morris over "Resolved: That the United States should grant financial aid to ships engaged in foreign trade, and owned by her citizens."

A chilly welcome awaits the victim—no softies in the old days

To Be or not T.B.; murmur the three!
But where are the back tires?

Expansion was the key word. An electric line from Goshen to Warsaw transported many a newcomer from the South or East, while shrubs, trees, drives, cement walks, tennis courts sprang up. The men's dorm rolled to the north of College Avenue. Indeed, during the first twenty years' span, Goshen averaged one new building in every five years.

The prize product of the '10's was the new four-story brick Science Hall, integrating Industrial Arts and Science into the college program. Thus, the Agricultural Department, including a horticulture laboratory with a greenhouse annexed, biological laboratory for Botany and Zoology, and the soils laboratory claimed the "ground" floor. Sometime earlier, several acres at the rear of the Dormitory had formed the nucleus of the growing Agricultural Department, as well as supplying the dining hall with fresh greenery. The second floor was delegated to domestic arts, while the flasks and beakers of the chemist and sparse physics apparatus cluttered floor three.

The College had "naturalized" a sizeable group of youth within its twenty-year scope. Meanwhile, the first flair for jalopies had livened campus life and a few traditions had fixed themselves on Goshen soil, especially those pertaining to the campus ornament—the fountain.

The Lecture Course now featured such men as Lew Sarett, poet; B. F. Baumgorat, scientist; or Wherohiko Rowe, "Uncle Sam's Samoan Islanders," and the library

From damp sod to solid structure, the Alumni help to make Goshen more livable was considerably expanded, now proudly displaying the newly acquired World Book and Chronicles of America.

Geissler spectrum tubes, Bending beam apparatus, Kundt's apparatus for measuring speed of sound, force table, sextant, motor rotator, microscopes with a mass of fellow-equipment replenished the sad Science labs.

The latter twenties saw a flourishing Science Club; Men's Dorm Association replacing the Student Council; the Audubon Society; Economics Club and thriving athletic program. A new department in economics and commerce was set up and the new 1926 sport, speedball, symbolized the shift of athletics into high gear. The newly revised program called for physical examinations with a specified minimum of three hours per week for physical exercise. All were to attend special physical education classes twice each week. Further, the 1926 Bulletin revealed the growth of the scholastic standards of the school. "Goshen College is primarily a Liberal Arts College with a regular curriculum offering majors in thirteen departments. Advanced Bible work equivalent to the Junior year of the graduate seminary . . . the faculty of the College of Liberal Arts consists of the President and fourteen instructors each giving full-time to the work of a single department. All have one or more years of graduate work."

The pint-size bottle of learning was diffusing its contents. One alumnus found his way to Oxford University for graduate study; another applied his political science to work in the League of Nations. Debaters won inter-collegiate honors and the Goshen College faculty published the Mennonite Quarterly Review, a unique contribution to the church. The choruses carried their message in song to surrounding Mennonite communities. The Jacob A. Lind collection of Indian relics added flavor and campus distinction.

Repairs and new structures as the $6,000 heating plant of 1926 or the remodelling of East Hall into six suites, and of Kulp

Hall, and the building of John S. Coffman Hall in 1930 necessitated the New Endowment Campaign in the early thirties. Coffman Hall was the pride of the men. It was "the first time in two decades of Goshen College history that all resident men are housed under one roof. This is a vital factor in building up our esprit de corps on the campus."

The Maple City Shirt factory installed in Coffman Hall cellar lightened the financial load of many a student, even while scholastic ambitions soared yet higher. "Bring dat Sinner Home" resounded throughout the campus as the choruses prepared for extensive touring, backed by the expanding Music Department.

Symbolic of the new education movement was Christopher Dock, pioneer Menonite schoolmaster. As the teacher demand increased, Goshen College in 1940 offered accredited training in a four-year elementary education program leading to the B.S. in Education degree. The next year included a re-accreditation for high school teachers' training and in March, 1941, the college was accredited by the North Central Association, a fitting occasion for the students' joyful celebrating through the streets of Goshen in belling array. The drawbacks had been concerned primarily with faculty training, library, student personnel service, administration, finance, and the church support financed the required improvements. In 1938, the present division system replaced the departmental structure, while the remodeling of the Administration Building, building the new Memorial Library, with a capacity of 50,000 volumes, and equipping the student lounge, snack shop and bookstore, strengthened the standards.

The years pushed on toward 1950 with amazing vigor and speed. CPS claimed our non-resident men, though a few chanced to quarter in Coffman Hall overnight unexpectedly when the May, '42, tornado hit Goshen. The industry and thoroughness of these CPS and college men aroused favorable comment in the city.

Yes, we were becoming more to the world. We were becoming speakers, writers, scientists, doctors, teachers, musicians, economists, historians, reestablishing interest in the Anabaptist vision. We were becoming international as we contacted our neighbors through European study groups or through relief service or through the student exchange innovation.

We were becoming missionaries—in India, Ethiopia, China, Japan—at Goshen, Indiana. North Goshen and East Goshen and Locust Grove Missions had become established churches, and Wawasee and Sunnyside became new projects of Goshen College. YPCA Volunatry Service Units brought East and West together.

The building went on and on, and still goes on—the building of churches, the building of stalwart towers, more sturdy than an auditorium-gymnasium or girls' dormitory is the building of character—of thinkers and workers. From the far corners of the earth, the new builders gathered together on a great plain, singing "Goshen College, we love you."
